Counting in the fresh air: 11,12...19!

I can choose the painting displayed!

I repeat scrubbing as often as I please!

The frog eggs Ms. Astrid brought hatched! Frogs go through metamorphosis!

I'm writing about the tadpoles with the moveable alphabet then on paper! My 'a' was too big; if I practice it I'll get the hang of it!

I'm illustrating my life cycle of a frog!

Mouse bones! It's not a mouse, it has big teeth. It's a vertebrate but it's another mammal! Squirrel! In Squirrel Brand Park!

"On the higher educational level, justice is something truly spiritual; it tries to ensure that every child shall make the best of himself (achieve his potential). Justice is to give every human being the necessary help, to bring about the fullest spiritual stature. Service of the spirit at every age means helping those energies that are at work to bring this about. This perhaps will be the basis on which society will be organized in the future. Nothing of these spiritual treasures shall be lost. In comparison with these, economic treasures have no value. Whether I be rich or poor does not matter. If I can attain the full measures of my powers, the economic problem solves itself. When humankind as a whole can fully perfect its spirit, it will become more productive, and the economic aspect of life will cease to be dominant. Men do not produce with their feet and their bodies, but with their spirit and intelligence, and when all these shall have reached the level of development which is proper to them, then all our "insoluble problems" will have been solved."
